

Structure of Vessel Financing in China and Hong Kong

13 July 2018

HKIB CPD	SFC CPT
3 Hours	3 Hours

Objectives

The business of ships or vessels financing generally involves financial institutions, be it a bank or a leasing company. Vessel financing refers to lending money to a company or an individual to purchase a secondhand ship or to build a new one. It can be even extended to the advance of money for non-shipping purposes, e.g. term loan or general working capital loan secured by the mortgage over the ship and its income.

The participants would be able to understand the structure and understand the different principal sources of security to the lenders and the different standard documents required in Mainland China and Hong Kong for ships financing after taking this program.
