

Scaling Digital Innovation: Strategic Transformation from Legacy to Future

Sponsored by:  Thomson Reuters™

LUNCHEON

NETWORKING

Overview

Digital innovation is a top priority for banks in Hong Kong. Banking professionals are exploring ways to master efficiency and effectiveness, as well as become more resilience, agility and future-ready. Aligning strategy with operational excellence and integrating new technologies into existing legacy systems without disrupting operations poses complex challenges. Sponsored by Thomson Reuters, the lunch seminar will address strategic approaches to innovation, current trends, and practical examples of successful digital transformations, and will provide insights on whether to buy, build, or partner to create scalable infrastructures and flexible processes for rapid development and effective deployment.

Agenda

- Explore strategic approaches to digital innovation in response to evolving financial markets
- Discuss current trends in Hong Kong and practical examples of successful digital transformations
- Examine how to efficiently and effectively integrate new systems with existing legacy infrastructures
- Evaluate buy, build, or partner strategies to create scalable infrastructures and flexible processes for rapid development and effective deployment

Who Should Attend?

- Bank managers and executives in charge of operations, client services, transaction banking and digital transformation
- Graduate trainees and management trainees in operations, relationship management and fintech roles
- Student Members planning to pursue careers in operations, relationship management and fintech
